Anyone looking at the condition of the world today will be struck by the dramatic changes taking place. On the one hand is the visible deterioration in so many fundamental processes and institutions, from the financial world, politics and the fabric of society to climate change and energy. On the other is an enlivening upsurge in knowledge, in concern for human rights and in technologies that bring people together.

These energies are spiritual in nature and result from the coming of God's most recent representative to humankind, Bahá'u'lláh. He has set in motion processes that are creating a new, divine civilization. In response to this, negative forces have risen to resist the divine purpose.

The nature of these spiritual forces is a prominent theme in the Bahá'í writings, particularly in those of Shoghi Effendi. They convey vital principles and laws, systematic processes and insights into the workings of the world. They explain the changes that are taking place and give us a glimpse into our own nature and reality.

In this book Hooper Dunbar examines the character of the spiritual forces as set out in writings of Shoghi Effendi. The first part considers the terms 'force', 'energy' and 'power' in these writings, while the second comprises a selection of quotations drawn from the writings of Shoghi Effendi many published here for the first time arranged chronologically, so readers may consider the ideas in their original context.

There is Hope in the suffering

By S. M. Smith

Half way through this book and am finding it an excellent resource for those days when it seems like the world is just one step away from imploding. While the realities currently taking place in the world at large can be depressing and confusing, this book lays out the energies and reasons driving the forces of light and dark that are at the core of our issues, as humanity struggles towards a unity built on overcoming the underlying prejudices and self-contentedness that drive much of our existence these days. There is hope out there, and we find it within each heart that strives to reach past the -isms of our ancestors.

Turmoils of our times analyzed

By John P. Ludgate

A wonder-filled and exhilarating examination of the Forces underlying all of the turmoil in today's world. Hooper Dunbar, a retired member of the Baha'i Universal House of Justice, intelligently pieces together appropriate and illuminating quotes from the Baha'i writings as they apply to our world's current disruptions. He uses many quotes from Shoghi Effendi and the last chapter contains others. Apparently this book is based on many talks on this topic given to youth groups at the Baha'i World Center. The production of the Book was at the behest of many of those youth who had attended his talks.

Inspired clarity regarding this world's challenges and confusions.

By 1musician1114

This book is so timely for helping the reader understand the naturally-clashing forces of our time (between out-dated habits and thoughts and new, finer options for living life, individually, collectively and societally). Mr. Dunbar, retired member of the International House of Justice of the Baha'i Faith, draws heavily from the wisdom contained in the voluminous Writings of this newest world-wide Faith. I highly recommend this book to anyone of open mind intent on serious search for timely answers to this world's plentiful challenges and confusions.
